Located in the former Soya Village, where Wakkanai originated, the park in which numerous historical sites and cultural properties remain is must-see for enthusiasts of history. Wakkanai (Soya) is also said to be the first place in Japan where the samurai classes drank coffee, and now there is a unique coffee-bean-shaped monument.

08 Visit the place from where Japanese explorer, Mamiya Rinzo set out on his journey.

Rinzo Mamiya explored Karafuto twice and discovered the Mamiya Strait (Strait of Tartary). Aged 29 at the time, Mamiya is said to have set out to explore from this point, 3 km west of Cape Soya. The silhouette of Karafuto can sometimes be seen in the distance.
